Dear Editor:

Bless you for giving us old gaffers our beloved Woozy Winks once more, if only for one issue. You now have the perfect answer for those who complain that Plas isn't his old self again. He's really Plas, Jr. with whom we are contending these days. If other editors had thought of that device, they wouldn't have had to bring the Earth One-Earth Two theory into play in order to give us back the "old" heroes along with the "new" versions. The story gave me a delightful time.

J. Randolph Cox, Reference Librarian,
St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.

For one issue, No. 7? Rest assured Wondrous Woozy will be back.—Ed.

• • •

Dear Editor:

For some time now, Plas has given every evidence that he likes Micheline and she's been panting after him. Come on now, will our Sultan of Stretch ever marry little Miss Millions and settle down to an ordinary, parasitic existence? By the way, keep up the great work!

Denise McCallum, Orangeport, Fla.

We're always trying for improvement, if we can. As for our pliable and pulsating pal wedding Micheline and giving up his kooky career, we don't even know if: our phone's going to ring again. Our Human Rubber Band is always indulging in elastic, fantastic antics, so who knows what shocker he might pull off next. Just stay with us, and enjoy!—Ed.

• • •

PM PATTER: "Just to say, hi, and to ask for a photo of our pretzel-like super-hero," says Hilda Madrid of Midland, Texas. (Sorry, no pin-up pics yet of Plas. For the present, you'll have to be satisfied with his lovable likeness on these pages.—Ed.)..."I really dig his stretchability," writes Rick Burrell of Hendersonville, N.C. "But really, long, red underwear?" (What are you saying, Rick? That's his colorful crimson costume! Is it more way-out that what the hippies and flower-power kids wear?—Ed.)

"Hey, I just had a sudden inspiration," shouts Martin Pasko of Clifton, N.J. "Why not let Bob Oksner take a crack at PM?" (We're satisfied with Jack Sparling's super-duper bang-up job, and besides Bob's loaded with the JERRY LEWIS and BOB HOPE comic mags. —Ed.)..."I'm sure you mentioned this before, but for those of us who came in late, whom do we salute for those sly and slightly sensational stories?" queries Chris Gagnon from Key West, Fla. (All hail Arnie Drake, who performs a similar script function for Bob Oksner.—Ed.)

• • •

"Every time I get to my newsstand, there are no more copies left of Plas," complains Jeffrey Schaffer of Beverly Hills, Calif. "Is there any way I can make sure I don't miss an issue?" (You can tell the dealer to order more, or get up very early in the morning to beat your fellow-fans, or subscribe. Rates appear in the indicia, the small print, printed at the bottom of Page 1.—Ed.)..Ramsey Bradley of Chicago announces he's formed a PLASTIC MAN Fan Club. (Whattaya do for fun, Ram—the twist?—Ed.)

"How come," ho-hums Eugene Janas of Brooklyn, N.Y., "that you changed Plas's costume from the original, which ran 20 years ago?" (You kidding? You know anybody who still wears the same duds he wore that long ago? Cheee—we change our suits twice a year, winter and summer!—Ed.)..."Shouldn't that have been a barbell, not a dumbbell, on No. 5's cover?" asks Howard Hale of Plainville, Conn. "Anyway, as it's been said before, Plas is a gas, no matter what. How about making the Assassin a regular villain?" (The dumbbell was us. As for a regular villain, we don't need him because we've got plenty where he came from—Ed.)...More pleas for PLASTIC MAN to go monthly from Jeff Glenn, Salisbury, Md.; Jeffrey Becker, Holyoke, Mass.; Brian Phelan, Montreal, Canada; Ritchie Anton and John Paggi of Burbank, Calif.; John Farrell, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Ron Chasid, Southfield, Mass.; George Dolack, Passaic, N.J. etc. etc. (You keep buying and writing, gang, and we'll do our best!—Ed.)
